

Exceptional Team Effort at Medford Multicare Achieves Success for Resident on Ventilator

It is refreshing to hear success stories about a resident who you wouldn't think could return home. When "June" arrived at Medford last July she was completely bed-bound and couldn't even sit up in a chair. Her future looked bleak after four months in a hospital ICU bed. She was ventilator-dependent and required around-the-clock nursing care.

The interdisciplinary care team at Medford Multicare evaluated her situation and developed an aggressive plan of care to restore June's independence, dignity and functional abilities. Her care team included nursing (RNs, LPNs & CNAs), Physical, Occupational & Speech Therapists, Respiratory Therapists, Clinical Dietitians, Social Workers and a Certified Therapeutic Recreation Specialist. Together with June & her husband they developed a detailed plan to achieve her rehab goals: Nursing would address her skilled care needs, Respiratory Therapy would wean her from the vent, Physical Therapy would strengthen her leg muscles to walk again, Occupational Therapy would retrain her in activities of daily living, Dietary would help her lose weight while maintaining proper nutrition and Social Workers would provide the vital emotional support to achieve her goals.

With her determination and the skillful efforts of Medford's staff, June has regained most of her independence. She is off the vent and breathing on her own. June gets out of bed each day and has successfully regained her ability to walk, and, since her admission, and with the help of Medford's dieticians, she has lost 60 pounds. This week, June is hearing plenty of compliments after having her hair done in Medford's beauty parlor. She is beginning to feel like her old self once again thanks to the wonderful team at Medford. With all of these great strides, June expects to achieve her main goal to return home.

Medford Multicare Center for Living houses one of the few long-term vent units on Long Island. They have a successful track record for weaning patients & getting them to return home. On Medford's vent unit each resident is assigned a Board-Certified Pulmonologist who knows, oversees and directs their care. Medford's staff is aided in the care of these residents by a cutting-edge computerized monitoring system. All ventilators at Medford are portable, which allows residents to take advantage of the beautiful facility, attend group activities, live entertainment, spend time on the patio or get their hair done in the beauty parlor.
